WHERE TO GO IN 2016

Okanagan Valley, British Columbia

Lying between two mountain ranges and thousands of acres of vineyards, the geography varies from the desert-like conditions in the south to the green plateau of the Naramata Bench and Okanagan Lake's sandy beaches. Last year was hotter than usual which is good news for many of the 2015 vintage wines, which have been predicted to be the best in the century will be ready for tasting in 2016.

Canyon Country

The National Park services marks its centennial in 2016. This would be the perfect opportunity to road trip through the red-rock cliffs, canyons and spires of the Southwest with stops at Bryce Canyon, Zion, Capital Reef and the Grand Canyon.

Ireland

There are several ways to get a new perspective on the Emerald Isle in 2016. The Belmond Grand Hibernian is Ireland's first luxury train. The 20 cabin train takes guests on a weeklong grand tour. A new eight day cruise offered by Lindblad Expeditions and the National Geographic Society hugs the coastline as it circles the island. Or a new seven day tour takes travelers on an overview tour of western Ireland by helicopter.

New Zealand

There are a lot of beautiful places in the world, but New Zealand is really and truly a unique gem. It's small, quiet and stunning. Incredibly diverse, yet amazingly compact. Tropical islands, thick forests, pristine lakes, surreal glaciers, rolling farmland, rugged mountain ranges, and empty beaches.

I would be pleased to introduce you to fascinating people and places; reveal travel tips honed by 30 years of traveling the globe; and recommend unforgettable trips that are meant to be shared with family and friends. Contact me at 239-325-5040 or email claudia@naplesluxurytravel.com.
