Antelope Canyon and Amangiri

When we think of the Southwestern United States we visualize the iconic Grand Canyon, Bryce, Zion, Arches and Monument Valley. These just scratch the surface. Having visited this area a several times over the last 40 years I discovered a few other jewels...Antelope Canyon and Amangiri (it means Peaceful Mountain). When visiting these National Treasures relax and be pampered at Amangiri Resort and Spa. You'll be rewarded with unforgettable vistas, warm hospitality, a fine hotel & spa and excellent local cuisine.

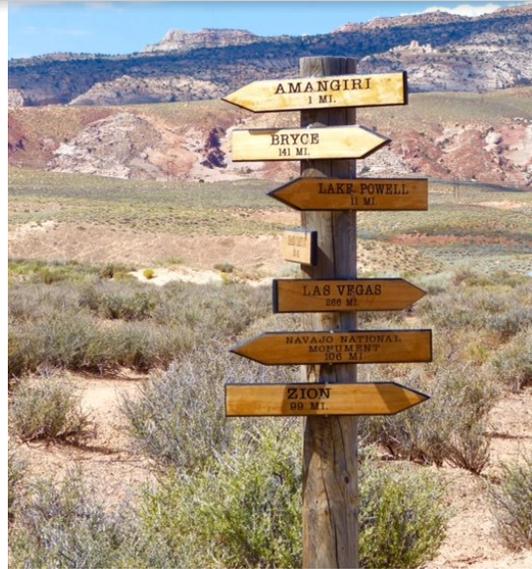

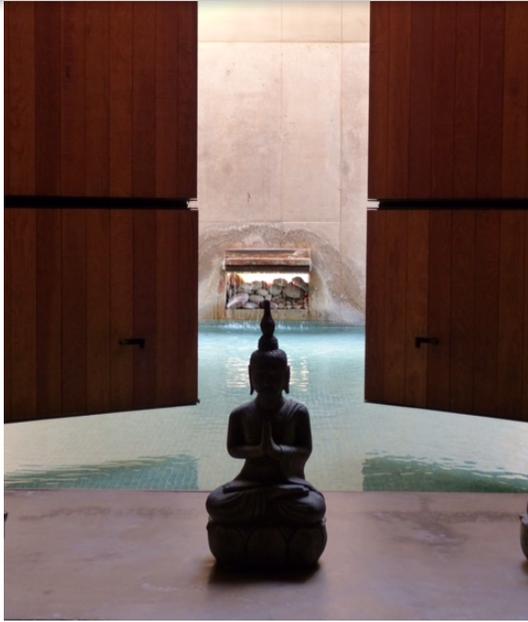

The sign is simple but not so the resort

Last month, I visited this luxury desert oasis on the Colorado Plateau. This rarely visited horseback riding, Navajo cultural experiences, paleontology, fossil excavation, Colorado River excursions including whitewater rafting or boating on Lake Powell.

It was a difficult choice between seeing the awe inspiring countryside or enjoying the resort, so I did both. Why have cake if you can't savor it. There is yoga, Pilates, and a full service spa.

Clockwise: The serene pool built around a large boulder; part of the lobby and dining room with expansive views of mesa and buttes on one side and the dramatic pool on the other side; a signpost of other places to visit; entrance to a magnificent spa; entrance to the resort.

Clockwise: View of my terrace with seating and an fire pit; a typical room; the room amenities with TV, minibar that can be covered by the large doors; and view of the mesas and buttes as the sun begins setting.

Antelope Canyon is a slot canyon on Navajo land a short 25 minutes away in Page, Arizona. There are actually 2 Antelope Canyons-Upper and Lower. These were formed by erosion of the sandstone by flash flooding. A photograph of Antelope Canyon by photographer Peter Lik sold for $6.5 million in 2014. My photos seen below have not been colorized or changed.

I would be pleased to work with you to incorporate this special area on your next visit to the magnificent southwest United States. Not only do the National Parks require reservations be made 1 year in advance and Amangiri is also in great demand.
